Granite State Warriors Awards
Presented at First Meeting of 2019

It was a clear, chilly winter day when the chapter held its first meeting of the new year on January 26, 2019 at the Portsmouth Country Club in Greenland. The staff was friendly and responsive to our needs. A total of 100 members and guests enjoyed their choice of either sole florentine, medallions of beef, or apple cranberry stuffed chicken breast. We were there to honor the recipients of the eighth annual Granite State Warriors Awards (G SWA). These awards are given to the New Hampshire resident or NH-based organization making the most significant contribution to the Armed Forces of the United States that year. Prior to the presentation of the awards, we were pleased to have US Senator Maggie Hassan join us to deliver a few remarks about the current goings-on in Washington, DC.

MOAA-NH President Warren Coulter presented the awards to the 2018 recipients, who were:

■ Norman Langlois (Dover) with the following citation:
Norman Langlois is awarded the 2018 Granite State Warriors Award for his support of veterans. Entering the US Navy at the age of 17, Langlois served on a PT boat and destroyer escort during WWII. After WWII, he started his civilian career as a machinist in Newfield, NH. In the Spring of 1958, Norman started his career in the hair styling industry. Throughout the following years, his efforts expanded and he went on to establish multiple salons, hair stylist academies, and beauty supply stores throughout the Eastern United States. At one point, all of his operations supported a total of 1,000 employees; and he became known as the “King of the Beauty Business.”

Through all of Norman’s success, he never forgot his roots as a US Navy Motor Machinist Third Class. Norman served his country with pride and made sure that all veterans entering one of his operations were given the treatment and service they deserved.

One policy in all his operations best exemplifies Norman’s love and respect for those who have served their country – veterans will always be given the best service at NO charge.

■ HALO Maritime Defense Systems (Newton) with the following citation:
HALO Maritime Defense Systems is awarded the 2018 Granite State Warriors Award. HALO provides advanced technology and state-of-the-art maritime security barrier systems to protect US naval bases, ports, oil and gas facilities, and other commercial and maritime assets to prevent incursion of unauthorized small-to-medium-size boats as well as swimmers.

To prevent future incidents like the 2000 bombing of the USS Cole in Yemen, the US Navy is highly dependent on HALO-provided defensive systems in use in both stateside bases like Norfolk and numerous foreign locations.

The HALO barrier is a passive, durable, low-maintenance, easily installed, highly customizable system capable of countering multi-vessel attacks. HALO security solutions are the only waterside barrier systems on the market to have been (continued on page 2)

President’s Corner
CAPT F. Warren Coulter, USN (Ret)

A perennial theme heard from Congress and DOD concerns proposed increases in TRICARE for Life based on their belief that retiree health costs are spiraling out of control. One of our Board members, Bill Luti, has researched the matter; and he agrees with MOAA National’s opinion that such increases are not needed since costs have actually been declining. He has authored a letter signed by our chapter leadership and board which has been sent to our congressional delegation asking for their help in protecting TRICARE for Life from any fees. The letter can be found on our chapter website, www.moaa-nh.org, along with an accompanying PowerPoint presentation.

We encourage all members to review those materials, contact your congressional representatives and senators, and echo the findings. Links to each of our legislative representatives are available on the chapter website.

Speaking of the next luncheon, we look forward to seeing you on April 27 as we return to the Common Man Restaurant in Plymouth. Please bring along a guest or two who are qualified to join the chapter so they can share in the fun.

In Service to My Country

I am a brother of Delta Tau Delta fraternity. This story is about a Navy war hero. It was published in our recent Delt Publication on November 28, 2018 and full credit for article and picture is Delt’s. I hope you enjoy this article as much as I do.

Lone Survivor Accepts Award for Heroism

In August 2018, Marcus Luttrell (Sam Houston State University, 1998) accepted Delta Tau Delta’s William L. McLaughlin Award for Heroism at the St. Louis Karnear’s Alumni Achievement Awards luncheon.

Luttrell is a United State Navy SEAL who received the Navy Cross and Purple Heart for his actions in June 2005 against Taliban fighters during Operation Red Wing.

Born and raised in Texas Luttrell and his twin brother, Morgan, attended Sam Houston State University where he joined the Fraternity in the fall of 1995.

Long before college, the brothers began training for the SEALs with former United States Army soldier, Billy Shelton, who lived nearby. As kids, they loved to hunt, fish, and wrestle alligators.

Luttrell joined the United States Navy in March 1999 and began Basic Underwater Demolition/SEAL training with Class 226 in Coronado, Calif. After suffering a fractured femur early in his training, he graduated with Class 228. Marcus graduated 18 Delta 2001, making him a team medic.

On June 28, 2005, Luttrell and three other SEALs were assigned to Operation Red Wing, a mission to kill or capture a high-ranking Taliban leader responsible for killings in eastern Afghanistan and the Hindu-Kush mountains. The SEAL team was made up of Luttrell, Michael P. Murphy, Danny Dietz, and Matthew Axelson.

A group of goat herders stumbled upon the SEALs, and the four SEALs immediately took control of the situation and discussed what to do with the herders. The herders were subsequently released and disappeared over the mountain ridge. Luttrell believes they immediately betrayed the team’s location to local Taliban forces and with an hour, the SEALs were engaged in an intense gun battle. In the ensuing battle, the rest of the SEAL team members were killed.

A MH-47 Chinook helicopter was dispatched with a force consisting of SEALs and 160th Special Operations Aviation Regiment “Nightstalkers” to rescue the team, but the helicopter was shot down by an RPG. All 16 men on the Chinook were killed. Luttrell was the only survivor. Badly wounded, he managed to walk and crawl seven miles to evade capture. He was given shelter by an Afghan tribe, who alerted the Americans of his presence and American forces finally rescued him six days after the gun battle.

Following his physical recovery from Operation Red Wing, Luttrell returned and completed one more tour before medically retired. He wrote the book, Lone Survivor, to share the story of his brothers who paid the ultimate sacrifice. In 2013, Lone Survivor became a major motion picture starring Marc Wahlberg. Luttrell’s second book, Service, answers questions remaining from Lone Survivor and gives honor and praise to other members of the military.

Today, Luttrell is married to the woman of his dreams and the couple has a son, Axe, who is named after Matthew Axelson, and a daughter, Addie.

In 2010, Luttrell established the Lone Survivor Foundation providing therapeutic retreats for service members and their families affected by Post-Traumatic Stress, mild Traumatic Brain Injury, Chronic Pain and Military Sexual Trauma. In 2017, the Long Survivor Foundation provided 38 retreats for 335 veterans and family members, all at no cost to the participants.

He is also deeply involved in The Boot Campaign, a charitable organization that focuses on support for service members, veterans and their families from every generation.

William L. McLaughlin Award for Heroism

Established in 2003, the William L. McLaughlin Award for Heroism recognizes exceptional heroism by members of the Fraternity—those who are distinguished by an act of valor at the risk of life above and beyond what is called for by ordinary citizens.

The first recipient, William L. McLaughlin, (Ohio Wesleyan University, 1906) was an undergraduate when he rescued victims of an infamous Chicago theater fire in 1903. McLaughlin succumbed to the injuries he suffered in that fire.

Subsequent recipients of the award include:

- Major Archibald Butt, (Sewanee: The University of the South, 1891), credited for saving numerous passengers on the Titanic before he perished
- Former International President William J. Fraering (Tulane University, 1946) who was killed by armed robbers while protecting his family
- Timothy J. McCarthy, (University of Illinois, 1971), a Secret Service agent who was wounded but survived while protecting President Ronald Reagan in a 1981 assassination attempt
TDY Honduras Task Force Engineer

From August 1983 to February 1984, the US conducted Exercise AHUAS TARA II, also known as Big Pine II, a JTX in Honduras based out of the Palmerola Air Base, now known as Soto Cano. Ahuas Tara means Big Pine in Miskito Indian language. At the time, the leftist Nicaragua Sandinistas were threatening Honduras. The U.S. troops were there at the request of the government of Honduras because the Sandinistas were kicking up their heels and it appeared they may try to invade Honduras.

The U.S. presence was to support the Honduran military should the invasion take place or as a minimum thwart the possible invasion. We were all always armed, locked, and loaded with live ammo even although it was “just an exercise.”

The Air Base was constructed in 1982 in support of the U.S.-Honduran combined military exercises. It is a Honduran military base five miles to the south of Comayagua, Honduras. It is about 60 miles from the Honduran capital of Tegucigalpa. The paved runway at Palmerola is about an 8,000-foot, jet-capable strip with parking aprons and taxiways.

The U.S. government used Palmerola as a base of operations to support its foreign policy objectives in the 1980s. Now the U.S. military uses Soto Cano as a launching point for counter-narcotics missions in Central America as well as humanitarian aid missions throughout Honduras and Central America.

In 1984 while stationed at Fort Sheridan, IL in Army Readiness and Mobilization Region V (ARMR V) my boss, COL Serge Demyanenko, asked me if I wanted to take a trip to Honduras. He had received a request from the Department of the Army looking for an engineer to serve as the Joint Task Force Staff Engineer. The trip would be in TDY status and may last up to six months. I tentatively agreed, but wanted to check with my wife before giving him a firm yes answer.

We lived in government quarters on Fort Sheridan along with my two daughters and my wife’s two daughters. My wife had a job and one of her daughters also worked. The other three girls were enrolled in the local school system. My wife agreed to support the TDY trip, so I was deployed to Honduras. While waiting for orders, I had been in contact with my sponsor, Captain Thomas Titus, who worked in the S-4 Office of the Exercise Headquarters, who prepared me for the deployment and arriving in country. I took a commercial flight from Chicago with a stopover for briefings from SOCOM in Florida. I departed Miami, landing in Tegucigalpa where I was met by a driver with ground transportation to the air base. That was a memorable 1.5-hour ride with the driver having to swerve several times to avoid hitting the very large (6 feet long, 2 feet wide and 30 inches tall) black spiny-tailed iguana darting across the road. Hitting one will do severe damage to a Jeep or sedan car. We were in a Jeep.

CPT Titus met me and took me to the CAT (Central American Tropical) hut, which was the temporary barracks built by Army Engineers when the air base was originally constructed. They were wooden 16’ x 32’ open bay half wall barracks built on stilts up off the ground that slept about eight or ten soldiers. The roof was covered with corrugated metal roofing. That became my home away from home during the deployment. After dropping my gear on my cot and changing into BDUs, we went to the unit armorer who issued me a M1911 Colt .45 pistol with several loaded magazines. I was instructed to wear it loaded at all times, which I did. I was able to find a piece of plywood and cut it to fit over the Army cot. Later, CPT Titus took me to the local village where I was able to procure a piece of 4-inch-thick foam, 3’ x 6’, that I set on top of the plywood. It made a nice bunk to sleep on.

I served as the Joint Task Force Staff Engineer in support of Exercise AHUAS TARA II, Republic of Honduras, during the period 15 March 1984 to 30 June 1984. I was responsible for all exercise engineering efforts in support of the exercising troop units. This was normally a lieutenant colonel’s position; however, I was a very senior captain with a lot of experience and was accepted by DOD to fill this position. My duties included supervising the construction of two C-130 dirt airfields in the jungles, numerous base camp projects, and the maintenance of the same all while supervising the exercise Engineer Units performing the required work. All exercise construction effort was very closely watched by the Congress of the United States. It is now my understanding (2019) that there were some Congressional investigations of the funding for some parts of the operations in Honduras.

One special project assignment included the reconnaissance and investigation of a site to install a Voice of America radio transmitter station in the Choluteca Province in southern Honduras on the border of Nicaragua. This mission was accomplished in civilian clothes covertly as it was right on the border of Nicaragua. For this mission, I had to go through the Honduran Infantry unit responsible for security of that area of the border with Nicaragua. I met with the battalion commander and his staff before going on the recon. They told me that I would be on my own out in the open with no direct security support. They informed me that there were no border markings in the area, that it would be difficult to know if I violated the border. They added that the Sandinistas were very active on their side of the border and cautioned me to be very careful. It was explained to me that they could not (continued on page 5) show themselves as it might insight the Sandinistas to cross the border and cause an international incident. Needless to say, this was a stress-filled mission. The Colt .45 was carried in a shoulder holster under my civilian shirt.

The continued presence of U.S. military forces in Honduras appears to have been the driving force in pre-venting an invasion from Nicaragua and has accomplished much to interdict the drug trade coming from Central America headed for the United States. Even the small but real terrorism threat against U.S. forces in Honduras has all but disappeared. The only thing the troops must worry about is getting rushed by the local kids asking for candy and cigarettes. The U.S. keeps about 1,300 soldiers in Honduras permanently to support the maneuvers and all indications are that the presence will continue.

I was awarded a Joint Service Commendation Medal (JSCM) for the assignment.
